STUDENT REPORT

Mr. Richards introduced Willa Scolori who will be the student representative to BU Council for 2020-2021. Ms. Scolori is from Brooklyn and is a sophomore majoring in Psychology.

Mr. Franklin reported his last report to the Council. This is his last year at BU having spent six years here.

He reported that many students had a difficult time transitioning to an online platform. For some, the structure of being on campus and attending in-person classes allowed for them to be more productive. Here at Binghamton, they were able to be independent of their parents, their various home situations, and therefore successfully concentrate on their academics. This Binghamton community, to a certain degree, allowed them to live their full authentic life. Unfortunately, however, some of our students had to return to home lives that may experience domestic violence, increased food insecurity, and other hostile environments. For many of our LGBTQ students, they returned home to families who are not accepting or tolerant of their authentic identity.

support to that community. Mr. Franklin thanked President Stenger and the rest of the administration for putting students first. This ranges from the weekly messages, to the activeness on social media from the communication department, to working with students who might need emergency funding during COVID-19, and even more importantly, the pass/fail option which allows students to breathe and process this world changing event. Mr. Franklin also thanked Jessica Cohen, Dr. Peabody, and the rest of Health Promotions and Prevention Services for their activeness which has highlighted the fact that there are still resources available to students.

John Santare, Student Association Vice President for Academic Affairs, is working closely with Pipe Dream to produce a publication that highlights more mental health resources that are available to students from a distance. Student Association President Emma Ross, working alongside Associate Vice Provost Nasrin Fatima, was able to successfully distribute the Sexual Assault Climate survey. As we know, climate surveys are important to have an accurate depiction of events that are happening on our college campus.

The SA Congress has elected Ross Mesnick as their 2020-2021 Academic Year Speaker.

The Graduate Student Organization (GSO) has elected their new executive board. The GSO Vice President Casey and her election committee are currently working with Vice President Rose, Dean of Student Randall Eduard, and Director of Business Operations Janice Bennett on contingency plans so that the good work of the GSO is not affected in the next academic year. It has been brought to our attention that the wording of the voting surrounding the Student Activity F

Mr. Franklin is happy and pleased to pass on the baton to Willa Scolari. Mr. Franklin addressed the class of 2020, both undergraduate and graduate students, to say that we definitely did not see this coming, but nevertheless, we should take the opportunity to process the changing world around us and think about the many ways our education and experience here at Binghamton can help us shape the world. Although the class will not have an in-person Spring Fling or
